Mauritius - A Popular History

Maurice - De l'île vierge à l'indépendance

Marina Carter

This lavishly illustrated book recounts the rich and complex history of Mauritius, tracing its major social, economic, political, and cultural developments — from Dutch, French, and British rule to the island's independence in 1968.

Written for Mauritians, visitors and history enthusiasts alike, it offers an engaging and informative narrative while synthesizing recent research that challenges our understanding of the island's past and its hybrid heritage.

L'archipel en moi
Nitish Monebhurrin

L'archipel en moi

Nitish Monebhurrin

In this sensitive and powerful autobiographical account, the author revisits the defining event that marked his break with the Hindu religion: his parents' refusal to let him take part in the Maha Shivaratri pilgrimage at the age of ten. Through this childhood memory, he explores themes of uprooting, Mauritian identity, communalism, and spiritual freedom.

This intimate text, punctuated with reflections on memory, shame, and family legacy, questions the weight of tradition and celebrates the courage to become fully oneself, beyond imposed affiliations.

After Face au tableau noir and Kaya is dead!, Nitish Monebhurrin delivers here his third book.

À l'ombre du grand jacquier

Amenah Jahangeer-Chojoo

Mauritius in the 60s. Young Ameenah was growing up in her maternal grandparents' home in a small village. She recounts her memories with a child's innocent view of a changing world. Crossing what she calls "invisible frontiers" she moved each day from home to the school playground, and from the madrasa to the church school. This family tale is told with a light touch but echoes of the first troubles linked to the independence of the country are there in the background.

Face au tableau noir

Nitish Monebhurrin

This autobiographical account describes Nitish Monebhurrin's years at school and college in Mauritius. This Mauritian author takes an uncompromising look at the local education system. From primary school up to the HSC he describes all the obstacles a pupil faces in a system which is based on mechanical learning and fear of the teacher. An atmosphere in which students fail to flourish or develop an independent way of thinking and reasoning. Creativity and selfconfidence also suffer. This is a severe indictment which reads like a vibrant plea for "a different kind of school" where learning would be a pleasure and the desire to discover and express oneself would lead to self-discovery and self-expression, far from the rote-learning, humiliations, corporal punishment and the tyranny of private lessons.

Kaya est mort !

Nitish Monebhurrin

On February 21st, 1999 the singer Kaya, the creator of seggae music, died in his cell in Alcatraz prison. The lack of detail on the exact cause of his death led to riots in Roche Bois that rapidly spread to other parts of the island. People in the poorer districts were angry and clashes between different communities occurred in various places, leading to looting, fires, destruction of buildings and the death of eight people.

These serious clashes lasted for five days and left an indelible mark on the Mauritian population. Here they are recalled by the author who was fifteen when these tragic events took place.

Escalaes mauriciennes

Travellers' tales transcribed and introduced by Marina Carter

The radical change that Mauritius has undergone in just two centuries is unique in the world. The luxuriant paradise of the dodo, never intruded upon by Man, has become one of the most densely populated spaces on the planet.

This extraordinary, sometimes brutal, saga took place between the 17th and early 20th centuries. It is described here with finesse and perspicacity in thirty accounts by travellers of the period, famous or otherwise: the rapid transformation of the island's landscapes, its ways of life, its complex and often quaint social customs and also its moments of drama.

A rich, illustrated tableau which leads to a better understanding of Mauritius today.

Mémoires Historiques de B. F. Mahé de La Bourdonnais

Governor of the Ile de France and Reunion Island

BB. F. Mahe de La Bourdonnais (1699-1753) distinguished himself both as ship's captain in the Royal Navy and administrator of genius. In the space of a few years he revolutionised the economy of the Ile de France through daring projects. He extended the area under sugar cane and built refineries, houses, hospitals, storehouses, canals, bridges and aqueducts as well as equipping the port with a radoub dock where ships could be berthed, built or repaired. However, in spite of all his courageous achievements, his destiny was a tragic one.

This work is a re-edition of the original manuscript written by Mahe de La Bourdonnais during his imprisonment in the Bastille from 1748 to 1751.

These memoirs were first published in Paris in 1827 then re-edited in 1892.

Port-Louis - Deux Siècles d'Histoire (1735-1935)

Auguste Toussaint

Cet ouvrage paru en 1936 fut commandé à Auguste Toussaint, alors jeune historien âgé de 25 ans, par le Lord-Maire de Port-Louis à l'occasion de la célébration du bicentenaire de la capitale.

Dès sa parution, ce livre connut un succès retentissant car c'était le premier qui retraçait avec rigueur l'histoire de l'île Maurice et, par extension, celle des Mascareignes.

The Mauritian Shekel

Le Shekel mauricien

Geneviève Pitot

This book tells the little-known story of 1,600 Jewish refugees who fled Nazi-occupied Europe in 1940 and, refused entry into Palestine, were deported to Mauritius by the British authorities and detained in prison there until the end of the war. Considered 'illegal' immigrants, their deportation to a remote British colony in the Indian Ocean was meant to serve as a deterrent to other Jews who might have wished to follow their example. Pitot's harrowing and well-researched account bears witness to the British government's disregard for the basic human rights of the men, women and children who were forcibly detained.

Philip Lim

Jean Fanchette 2017 Award

In this, his first published work, the Mauritian photographer Philip Lim invites us on a journey through some of his favourite photographs. In black and white, Lim's photographs explore the truths behind the places and faces encountered on his travels, and offer glimpses of his creative quest as both photographer and writer. With sensitivity and elegance, Lim tells the story behind each image, as he shares with us his encounters, observations and often humorous anecdotes.

Maurice PATURAU

Un homme d'exception

with the collaboration of Yvan Martial

A hero of the Second World War and later minister and co-ordinator of the Joint Economic Committee of his country, Maurice Paturau was a man of duty and a leader respected and listened to by all. An extremely hard worker with unparalleled strength of character, he clear-sightedly orchestrated the strategic decisions that raised Mauritius to the first rank of the emerging economies of the second half of the 20th century. With his strong sense of moral and social responsibility, he favoured a more equal distribution of wealth and the separation of legislative, executive and judiciary powers. This generously illustrated work recounts the life of this exceptional man who was both a visionary and a patriot and who left a decisive mark on the development of his country. Today Maurice Paturau is still the object of great admiration among his fellow citizens, both for his courage and generosity and for the modesty, he showed in his dealings with others.

Traverser l'impossible

Lilian Eymeric with the collaboration of Mano Gentil

Traverser l'impossible tells the incredible life story of Lilian Eymeric, World Champion of Open Water Swimming, named Mauritian of the Year in 2016. The book recounts the key episodes in the life of the Frenchman, who settled in Mauritius in 2016, and where he set himself the crazy challenge of swimming from Mauritius to Reunion Island, to raise funds for T1 Diams, a charity that supports children with diabetes. As well as recounting his achievement (238.7 km in just over 51 hours), Lilian reveals what motivated him to go to such extraordinary lengths for other people. Far more than an account of sporting prowess, Traverser l'impossible exhorts us all to live our lives to the full and to exceed our own limits.

MORIS TIPIK

Patrick Laverdant

Patrick Laverdant loves to meet people. With an exceptional sensibility he captures those fleeting moments where men, women and children tell the story of their daily lives in a look or a smile. Leaving the emerald lagoons at a distance, this photographer roams all over Mauritius and Rodrigues in search of a brief conversation or a shared moment with his fellow countrymen. In this collection of about a hundred pictures, Patrick Laverdant invites us to share these moments of togetherness, sincere and without artifice.

Nature

Patrick Laverdant

Patrick Laverdant's beautiful coffee-table book presents an original vision of the shapes, textures and colours of Mauritius' natural environment, with each powerful image reminding us of the respect that we all owe to the natural world. Laverdant's close-up shots of subjects from his native island create a new grammar of vegetable and mineral shapes and natural colours. NATURE also includes larger-scale, double-page landscapes, which serve as the settings for the isolated details of other photographs. Whether taken close-up or from a distance, Laverdant's photographs are hymns to the beauty and diversity of Mauritian nature.

Flashback

Jaffar Houssain Sobha

Jaffar Houssain Sobha's wonderful black and white photographs bear witness to the Mauritius of a bygone era. They recount everyday Mauritian life in the countryside, on the coast, and in the capital Port Louis, from the 1960s to the 1980s. In roughly one hundred photographs, many evoking a gentler way of life, this emotionally-charged book harks back to the period of the country's transition to independence.

Incognito

Dominic Sansoni

After the success of Mauritius Colour in November 2010, Dominic Sansoni offers us a new journey to Mauritius and Rodrigues islands in his new book, Incognito. Far from the usual tropical island clichés, the Sri Lankan photographer invites us to meet the inhabitants of the two islands. Taking an unembellished look at the little details of their daily lives, Sansoni presents snapshots of a street corner, through a half-open door or a market stall. This endearing and enlightening book is a spirited tribute to the engaging authenticity of real-life Mauritians and Rodrigans.

Affiches 1975 - 2018

Firoz Ghanty

The role of posters is different from that of other art forms. Above all, the poster has a purpose: it seeks to convey a message, urging the viewer to reflect and to take up a position. First used as advertising or propaganda tools, the creative potential of posters has also appealed to artists, notably Toulouse-Lautrec.

The Mauritian artist and trades union activist Firoz Ghanty was a faithful exponent of the poster from the 1970s onwards. This book brings together a collection of Ghanty's posters from throughout this period, reflecting the political, social, cultural and artistic causes for which he fought and plotting his artistic and political evolution.

Les religions à l'île Maurice

Fabienne Jonca - Hélène Moreau

with the collaboration of the Mauritian Council of Religions

This beautiful picture book offers an overview of the nine major religions that are present in Mauritius. It is composed of a narrative part and a documentary section, both of which help children learn more about their own religion and the religions of their classmates.

The aim of The Religions of Mauritius is to encourage inter-faith dialogue between different communities. Young readers, of any religion or none, are invited to imagine themselves in other people's place and to experience the daily rituals of others' religions. In a country as diverse as Mauritius, such dialogue is vital to ensure that we live together in harmony.

TIKULU'S WORLD

With 19 titles and more than 350,000 copies sold, the Tikulu collection is a Mauritian publishing phenomenon. The fruit of an encounter between the artist Henry Koombes and the publisher Pascale Siew, the little dreadlocked hero, Tikulu, has been attracting loyal fans since 1998.

Rendered in vivid, tropical colours with short, simple texts, the world of Tikulu encompasses the islands of the Indian Ocean, and is united by the values of friendship, solidarity and respect for the environment.

Tasty Delights

La Clef des Saveurs

Jacqueline Dalais

What is the secret of this self-taught cook who has been delighting Mauritians' tastebuds for almost five decades? For the first time, Jacqueline Dalais shares her recipes for the signature dishes that have brought her fame well beyond the shores of our island and some of the traditional recipes that have been lovingly passed down from one generation to the next.

If there is a word that sums up the cuisine of this great cook, it is generosity: generosity of tastes, flavours and colours. This book invites you to travel and to share.
